Twenty soldiers from the 18th Military Police Detachment ran in the recent Special Olympics Law Enforcement Torch Run and an additional 22 supported the annual event. the state of Arizona started at five different locations. He said the five-day event is held in all 50 states and in 23 foreign countries five days before the start of the Special Olympics and that eventually all of the torches will meet. The Fort Huachuca MPs were assigned to a section that started outside Benson and extended towards exit 279, a distance that covered approximately 29 miles. Even though there was not a set amount of miles for individuals to run, Sgt. Kenneth Honeycutt ran a total of six. "I enjoy running, especially when there is a purpose behind it. I felt honored, like it was my one chance to give something more than the average person could in support of the Special Olympics," Honeycutt said. Honeycutt said for the first mile soldiers ran in formation and after that they ran an average of one mile each. He said he kept running so he could motivate the soldiers in his squad. "Every soldier had their personal reason for participating," King said. "Personally I enjoyed supporting the Special Olympics. Participating exposed me to a new, worthwhile cause. It also increased the esprit des corps in our units; the soldiers had a good time doing it." He also said drivers who were passing by

Olympic trials next for Army boxers

All-Army boxers Staff Sgt. DeAndrey Abron and Pfc. Clarence Joseph secured berths in the 2004 U.S. Olympic Trials by winning gold medals May 31 in the 2003 Golden Gloves of America National Tournament of Champions. Abron spent a rugged week in Las Vegas dusting the rust from a long hiatus from the ring for Basic Noncommissioned Officers Course and was sharp enough to defeat Detroit's Johnathon Banks, 5-0, in the 178-pound finale at Orleans Arena. Joseph stormed through the biggest tournament of his life to record a 5-0 decision over Nevada's Jesus Gonzalez Jr. for the 165-pound national championship. Sgt. Torrence Daniels also reached the Golden Gloves finals but settled for silver after losing 5-0 to California's Sergio Ramos. Spc. Aaron Bensinger lost a 4-1 semifinal decision to Texas' Jose Orozco at 132 pounds. Orozco finished runner-up in the six-day, single-elimination tournament to champion Anthony Peterson of Washington, D.C. Spc. Edward Joseph, Clarence's older brother, dropped a 4-1 quarterfinal decision to hometown boxer Abdon Lozano Jr., who was eliminated in the 152-pound semis by Florida's Andre Berto, who won the Golden Boy award as best boxer in the tournament. The Army's Golden Gloves champions, both members of the World Class Athlete Program, were relieved to have qualified for the 2004 U.S. Olympic Boxing Trials to determine spots on Team USA. Abron, 29, a military policeman from Youngstown, Ohio, who was bothered all week by a sore right arm, unleashed a devastating left hook to win his final bout. "Coach helped me a lot tonight by telling me to rely on my left hook. It's strong, but I should've been using it all tournament," Abron said of his championship victory over Banks. "I didn't plan it, but it worked out that way. He didn't see the left hook coming. He hadn't seen it the whole tournament so it helped me surprise him a little bit." Daniels landed several power punches in his final bout but spent too much time backed against the ropes by Ramos, who kept Daniels from utilizing the ring. "Everything went pretty much like I wanted; I did enough to win it," said Daniels, 29, a multi-channel transmission communications system operator from Muskegon, Mich. "In between every round, my coaches told me what they wanted me to do the next round and I went out and executed, but apparently the judges didn't see my way today. "I was very shocked by the decision. I thought it was a competitive bout, but I felt that I did enough to win it, especially in the last two rounds. I was landing the cleaner and harder shots and I was out-boxing him, but maybe that's not what the judges were looking for today." All-Army boxing coach Staff Sgt. Basheer Abdullah couldn't believe the decision. "I feel really bad for that soldier because this is the second tournament that he was ripped off," he said. "He was ripped off at the U.S. National Championships and then again here at the Golden Gloves on championship night. He put everything into it and I was proud of him, and they took it from him. Some people told me on the side there were two California judges sitting down, so we went into the fight two-down already. I don't know how they saw that bout 5-0. "I don't want to complain about it. I just hope that Torrence keeps his head up and stays focused. The mission is to just qualify [for the Olympic Trials] and we have three more qualifiers." Daniels, who exhibited tremendous heart and will to go with his boxing prowess, found the setback exceptionally difficult because this will be his final Golden Gloves appearance. "It's very hard to swallow because one: it's my last one, and two: because it was an Olympic Trials qualifying tournament," he said. "So now I have to go back to the drawing board and

Even though Dave Nelson, general manager for the Army-Air Force Exchange Service at Fort Huachuca, is overseas participating in Operation Iraqi Freedom, big changes are underway for the Post Exchange according to Marshall Bickerstaff, main store manager for the exchange. Among new events for the PX is the upcoming Spring Festival at the store. Scheduled from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., tomorrow and Saturday, it is planned as a family event. Bickerstaff said the festival will include rides and games, street vendors, barbecue, and an appearance by the Sierra Vista Corvette Club on both days. The exchange is also serving the community via its "You made the Grade" program, Bickerstaff said. Under the program, students with a "B" average or better can present their report cards at the exchange, and receive a coupon book worth up to $50 in savings on store items. They can also register to win a sweepstakes with a grand prize of $10,000. "The post has really supported this program," Bickerstaff said. In support of families with troops overseas, Western Union service at the PX is offering 20 percent off on money transfers as part of "Operation Family." "That's an ongoing program for the foreseeable future," Bickerstaff said. He said the exchange is offering numerous services to benefit Fort Huachuca's soldiers, among them is digital Internet access via DSL available through the exchange. "It's a real deal for the students, especially," Bickerstaff said. "For students, there is a $25 installation fee, and then a $5 monthly fee for the service." He said students receive a digital modem, which they return when leaving the fort. Whether you drove the seemingly endless 878-mile stretch of Interstate 10 across Texas and then continued on through New Mexico and Arizona, or flew in to the Tucson International Airport, your first thought, as you got closer to Fort Huachuca, might have been that you were getting stationed in the middle of nowhere. Although that might seem true, at first, Fort Huachua, Sierra Vista, and the surrounding areas are renowned for their natural beauty, majestic mountains, history, and culture.

I have lived or been stationed in South America, Iceland, Hawaii, and throughout the continental United States. Each time I left an area, I always regretted that I didn’t get out and see more while I was there.

Use your time here at Fort Huachuca to explore the Grand Canyon State, its state parks, national parks, national historic landmarks, conservation areas, preserves, memorials, museums, Spanish, Colonial, and Native American historical and cultural places, the wilderness, birds and wildlife, picnicking, camping, hiking, Mexico, and countless other activities.

Each week I will recommend a day trip. Get out of the barracks or your house and come explore Arizona with me. Next week I’ll show you how to keep cool in the summer heat as we explore some of our local lakes and water parks.

National parks

The National Parks Service offers a 104-page passport book titled “Passport To Your National Parks”. It serves as a guide to the national parks in Arizona and throughout the United States. When you visit a national park you can get your book canceled with an ink stamp that records the name of the park and the date of your visit, much like a real passport. Passports are sold at a park’s visitor center and cancellations are free of charge. It is an exciting and colorful way to learn about our national parks, plan trips, and keep track of your visits. To find out more about the Passport program and national parks, please visit www.eParks.com. An annual family pass can be purchased for $50, good for free admission to all national parks.

Arizona state parks

The Arizona State Parks Board announced that under Governor Napolitano’s executive order “Ensuring benefits and protections for Arizona’s servicemen and women,” all deployed military personnel and their immediate families can enter the 27 Arizona state parks, for free, after Memorial Day through Labor Day, 2003. Visitors will have to show their military or dependent identification card and deployment orders. This offer will provide free summer day-use for deployed Arizona-based Army National Guard soldiers and Air National Guard airmen as well as Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force Reserve personnel and immediate families. For a list of Arizona state parks and park information, please go to www.azstateparks.com.

State law now provides greater enforcement power to the authorities that are trying to protect animals from harm.

Arizona Revised Statute 13-2910 makes it a criminal offense for anyone to “knowingly, intentionally or recklessly leave an animal unattended and confined in a motor vehicle and physical injury of the animal is likely to result.”

The amendment to the law went into effect in October 2002. According to the Animal Cruelty Taskforce several communities throughout the state have had similar laws on the books for years however this state law will make it universal.

The statute also allows “a peace office, animal control enforcement agent or animal control enforcement deputy to use reasonable force to open a vehicle to rescue an animal if the

Police officers and animal control officers under the law are not liable for any damage they may cause to the vehicle while performing the rescue.

According to the Humane Society, in the event that an animal is left in an unattended vehicle a law enforcement officer should be notified. On Fort Huachuca if the owner cannot be contacted the animal will be removed from the vehicle and brought to the veterinary clinic on post. The owner of the vehicle will be cited for violating the law and must appear in court.

Often people will notice that a pet has been left in a hot, unattended vehicle and not know who or when to call. According to the Animal Cruelty Taskforce of Southern Arizona it is not the responsibility of a citizen to determine whether or not a crime has been committed.

This is the obligation of the law enforcement officer. If you believe that the animal is in danger your only responsibility is to call.

To report an incident in which you think an animal is in danger call the military police station, 533-2181.

DSL service pay a $100 installation fee, and $27.50 monthly for the service. Bickerstaff said permanent party soldiers get to keep the digital modem, accounting for the higher installation fee.

Bickerstaff said soldiers should go to their barracks telephone office to get more information about the service. Soldiers must have a telephone to be eligible for the service.

In addition to the DSL service, the Post Exchange has also made changes to the vendors in the concourse area at the front of the mall. Replacing the former One-Hour Photo shop is the new East-West Oriental store. Bickerstaff said the new store contains gifts and household items. The shop opened in mid-May. He said the UPS Store in the mall is now offering passport photos, which fills one void left by the departure of the One-Hour Photo.

He said another store, Blackfeather, is leaving, to be replaced by a store with a Southwestern theme, operated by Ed’s Electric and Lighting of Whetstone. “He has a large gift stock, and he’ll take over in the mall at the first of September,” he said. “He sells Southwestern merchandise, pottery, and baskets.”

Bickerstaff added that AAFES is working to contract additional new businesses at the PX. “One is Enterprise Rent-a-Car. We’ve already awarded them the contract, and they should be up and running by mid-June,” Bickerstaff said.

Another possible resident at the PX is a new Harley-Davidson store, offering motorcycle apparel and accessories. “We’re looking into that. They’ve already reached an agreement with AAFES, and they’re doing site surveys to determine if it will be here. We should know something in about 60 days,” Bickerstaff said.

Pets of the Week

My name is Asher. I am a 7 month old male golden shepherd mix. My owners gave me away because their little boy did not like me, and I need a good home. I am very playful and get along well with other animals. I would also do better in a home with children. My adoption fee includes a neuter, microchip, heartworm test, and deworm for $42.

My name is Angelica. I am a young female, orange and white, medium haired cat. I came into the clinic stray and need a home. I am really smart and sweet. My adoption fee is $42 and includes a microchip, vaccinations, leukemia test, spay and deworm.

My name is Oswald. I am a young male grey domestic shorthair tabby cat. I was found stray on post but am very sweet. I love to cuddle and make you laugh. If you’re interested in a wonderful new cat, please come adopt me. My adoption includes a neuter, microchip, vaccinations, leukemia test, and deworm for $42.

My name is Sarina. I am a 7-month-old female tricolor dalmatian and heeler mix. I am still a young dog but appear to have good manners and am willing to learn. I came in stray to the clinic and desperately need a home. My adoption fee is $52 and includes a spay, vaccinations, microchip, heartworm test and deworm.

The event is sure to be informative and fun. Take this opportunity to meet others new to Fort Huachuca and get the information you want about the community.

Child care is available through New Beginnings Child Development Center. Call ACS at 533-2330 no later than Tuesday to reserve a child care slot (6 weeks - 5 years).

For additional information about the orientation, contact Katie Demko at 533-6874 or e-mail katie.demko@us.army.mil.

Korea orientation

Army Community Services is offering a Korea orientation for soldiers and family members, Wednesday at 6 p.m., going to Korea for the first time. This event should help alleviate some of the stress of moving out of the country, and to address realistic expectations. R.S.V.P must be completed by Monday. Call ACS at 533-2330.

Relocation workshop

Army Community Service is offering a relocation workshop for soldiers and family members making their first move. The workshop will provide a moving day checklist, commonly-referenced phone numbers and moving entitlements. There are many things to do in preparation for the move, so let ACS help you make your move as effortless as possible.

The workshop will be held June 25 at 10 a.m. and again at 6 p.m. You may attend either workshop. R.S.V.P. must be completed by June 24 call ACS at 533-2330.

A time of healing with art

When you see the mixed-media sculpture of Tracy Gonzalez, currently on display at the MWR Art Center, you can see flashbacks of the emotions our country and its people have gone through in the almost two years that have passed since September 11.

The sculpture depicts the sorrow and anger that we felt at the death and destruction caused by the terrorists. By using rustic, interwoven metal, Gonzalez has also depicted the American flag, gracefully blowing in the wind.

A strong self-portrait done in watercolor by Gonzales shows the emotion that she felt at the time, and ties the whole masterpiece together.

If you are a lover of art, this is a must-see. These, and other works of art will be on display at the MWR Arts Center until the end of June.

difficult because this will be his final Golden Gloves appearance.

“It’s very hard to swallow because one: it’s my last one, and two: because it was an Olympic Trials qualifying tournament,” he said. “So now I have to go back to the drawing board and compete in the National Police Athletic League tournament to get my Olympic berth. I can still do it. I have confidence that I can do it.”

Clarence Joseph, on the other glove, was making his first appearance in the Golden Gloves Nationals.

“It was a great fight, man, a lot of intensity,” said Joseph, 20, an aviation operations specialist from St. Croix, Virgin Islands. “Gonzalez is awkward, but he couldn’t touch me. I said to myself: ‘I’m going to pull it through.’ ”

Joseph started the bout fighting south-paw and switched to a right-handed stance in the second of four rounds. In the third round, “Boom, I switched back to south-paw and whipped and whipped him,” he said, “and in the last round I just took it to him.

“It feels great,” a jubilant Joseph continued. “All this hard work paid off finally. I’ve trained hard for this.”

Joseph, who doubles as a reggae artist, credited the support of teammate-brother Edward, younger brother Livingstone, and father Rudolph, who helped work his corner.

Abron, an Olympic alternate for the 2000 Sydney Games, plans on getting stronger and perfecting his technique for the 2004 Trials.

“Like I’ve been telling you for years, I haven’t put it all together yet,” he said. “Right now, I’m not even close, so I’m going to go back to the drawing board and work on fundamentals again - go back to the basics. It feels good to win a national title, but it feels even better to get my Olympic Trials bid. It’s going to be here before you know it.”

Boxers still can qualify for the Olympic Trials by striking gold in the Police Athletic League National Championships, Armed Forces Championships or Western Trials. They also can earn a berth by reaching the finals of the 2004 U.S. National Championships.

“These guys got it out of the way early; they can pick and choose where they want to compete now,” Abdullah said of the Golden Gloves champions. “The goal coming in here was to qualify two and we knew this was going to be a tough place to qualify.”

was a great way to support the community,” King said. The MPs were able to provide further support to the Special Olympics by purchasing Torch Run T-shirts and caps.
